

Center for Integrative
Studies in Social Science
MICHIGAN STATE UNIVERSITY

Blaze a Trail to Your Future Health Career

JOIN THE GLOBAL HEALTH CONCENTRATION

The Global and International Studies in Social Science major with a Global Health concentration allows you to design your own journey to a health career.

You can explore topics such as pandemics, health equity, and international healthcare systems — and gain the knowledge and skills to prepare for your next steps.

SAMPLE COURSES

- Anthropology of Culture, Health, and Illness
- Geography of Drugs
- History of Food and Alcohol
- Introduction to Epidemiology and Public Health
- Public Health Nutrition
- Society and Mental Health

Whether you're heading into the workforce or continuing your education, you'll be well prepared — with experience in research, interdisciplinary thinking, and driving positive change. Explore our Global Health Concentration today!

YOUR PATHWAY TO DEEPER LEARNING

All students will take Introduction to Global Health (OST 450), an online, asynchronous course that allows you to engage with foundational material on a schedule that works best for you.

Contact an advisor
for more info